Wide Rein Given Young GOP at County Session

Appear Convention Choices

RAYMOND J. MINO
(For County Judge)

DAVID W. CORWIN
(For District Attorney)

The Ulster County Republican convention convened shortly after 11 o'clock today at municipal auditorium to recommend party candidates to be voted for at the November election and transact other political business. Speaker of the day, Francis V. Elias, Queens attorney and prominent in Young Republican circles in the greater New York area, was scheduled to be introduced by Assistant District Attorney James Murray of Ellenville.

Wilson Lands Young GOP

In deference to the vigor and enthusiasm of the "Young Republicans," the convention paid tribute to their united support when Ulster County Republican Committee Chairman Kenneth L. Wilson, state assemblyman from Woodstock, turned over much of the convention business to representatives of the Ulster County Young Republican Club group.

Primarily the convention met to recommend candidates for county offices, name delegates to the State Judicial convention and nominate committeemen.

Called to order by Chairman Wilson the National Anthem was sung by Miss Vivian Linder of the Town of Saugerties accompanied by Carl Davis of Town of Olive. The invocation was by the Rt. Rev. Monsignor Daniel J. Shea, pastor of St. Mary's Church of Kingston and dean of Ulster County.

The matter of nominations, following the adoption of the roll call, appeared to be a matter of routine as the convention progressed.

To be named is: County Treasurer, County Judge, District Attorney and Coroner.

No Opposition Seen

At convention time it appeared as though there would be no opposition to the naming of the present officials and that County Treasurer Fred H. DuBois of New Paltz, County Judge Raymond J. Mino of Kingston, District Attorney David W. Corwin of New Paltz and Coroner Arthur C. Chipp of Kerhonkson would be selected to succeed themselves.

Following the preliminaries, Chairman Wilson introduced John Ray Mayone of Kingston, president of the Young Republican Club, who in turn turned the meeting over to Robert E. Sledge, justice of the peace of the Town of Ulster.

Republican committeemen who have died during the past year were honored in memory by a (Continued on Page 5, Col. 2)

Reds May Counter Refugees

Flow Is Possible From Soviet Bloc

By CARL HARTMAN

BERLIN (AP) — Apprehension mounted in West Germany today that the steady flow of refugees into West Berlin might prompt the East German Communist regime to make up its population loss by importing immigrants from the Soviet bloc.

Ernst Lemmer, minister for all-German affairs, told newsmen in Bonn this possibility is causing "serious uneasiness" because it could threaten the German character of East Germany's population.

Reunification Blow
A mass immigration from the east could blast West German hopes for eventual reunification of the two Germany's through free elections.

Lemmer said that for this reason West Germany will continue to urge the remaining 17 million East Germans not to flee, but he predicted the present rate of 1,000 refugees a day will continue.

He denied East German charges that West Germany lures refugees for propaganda purposes even though nearly 2.5 million (Continued on Page 5, Col. 1)

Bourguiba Bids Negotiations For Withdrawal of Frenchmen

TUNIS, Tunisia (AP) — President Habib Bourguiba proposed negotiation of France's withdrawal from the Bizerte naval air base in a broadcast speech today while French troops battled Tunisian soldiers and snipers in the heart of Bizerte city, breaking down pockets of resistance.

French troops backed by armor occupied Bizerte at dawn.

Says Two Sides With France

Bourguiba complained that the United States and Britain were siding with France in the dispute over the base that broke into open warfare Wednesday. He admitted his troops fired first, but declared "we are at home, this is our territory."

It was reported on July 21 that French paratroopers supported by artillery fire and strafing planes unleashed an all-out battle for control of the city. ## Vows Troop Funds If President Acts

By FRANK E. TAYLOR

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. A. Willis Robertson, D-Va., says President Kennedy isn't likely to declare a limited emergency now and call up the reserves and National guardsmen.

But if he does, Robertson added Friday, the Senate Appropriations subcommittee could approve the money for pay and subsistence for up to a million men.

He also said nearly $1 billion could be added quickly to a pending military money bill if Kennedy asked for it to help meet the Berlin crisis.

Could Add $500 Million

Robertson, acting chairman of the appropriations subcommittee, said that in addition to such money for aircraft, missiles and Navy vessels, more than $500 million could be added for Army hardware.

He said he told Kennedy at a White House luncheon Thursday that the subcommittee will withhold action on the $43 billion defense spending bill until after the President's nationwide radio and television speech Tuesday on the Berlin situation. He is expected to send extra defense requests to Congress Wednesday.

Robertson said he believes his subcommittee will support Kennedy's proposal to take a firm stand in the Berlin issue, including the prompt strengthening of the U.S. military establishment.

Thinks K Will Get Point

In reference to the U.S. firm position on Berlin, Undersecretary of State Chester Bowles said the United States cannot convince the Russians they cannot blackmail this country into abandoning West Berlin.

He said he thought Soviet Premier Khrushchev will realize the United States cannot be pushed around by him.

Bowles' comments came in a radio interview distributed to stations around the country by News Associates, Inc. The interview was recorded earlier for release Saturday.

Rusk, Allies Confer

In a 30-minute conference Friday, Secretary of State Dean Rusk briefed British, French and West German envoys on U.S. defense plans for Berlin.

Afterward, West German Ambassador Wilhelm Grewe hinted that part of the Kennedy program involves an increase in NATO's conventional weapons defense forces. But none of the diplomats would go further than that.

AMSTERDAM, N. Y. (AP)—Arrests were completed early today for 35 men seized in one of the largest simultaneous gambling raids by State Police in the Mohawk Valley.

Seven men were charged with felony violations of state gambling laws. The others faced misdemeanor gambling counts.

Matching Yuri Is First Aim

Loss of Capsule Won't Mean Delay

By ALTON BLAKESLEE

Associated Press Science Writer

CRAND BAHAMA ISLAND (AP)—Two of the world's three space travelers—Virgil Grissom and Alan Shepard Jr.—met with their fellow American astronauts today to plot new steps along the trail that leads to the moon.

First, they want to match the feat of the Russian, Yuri Gagarin, first human to orbit the earth. Then it's on toward President Kennedy's goal of sending an American team to the moon and back in this decade.

Hop More Dangerous

"Gus" Grissom relaxed after a hair-raising journey in space that ended in a swim for his life in the Atlantic Ocean.

The Air Force captain, 35, had successfully followed the sub-orbital trail first flown last May 5 by Shepard, but his journey was much more dangerous.

He reported his capsule control system was sluggish and he had trouble with it as he tested it in the weightless environment of space.

Then, when his parachute lowered him into the ocean at the end of his 3,280-mile-an-hour trip, he told Shepard on his radio "you might make a note" of the fact that there was a six-by-six inch hole in the chute. Shepard was at the rocket control center.

Near-Tragedy

Finally, his 118-mile high, 303-mile long flight ended in near-tragedy when the explosive bolts of his escape hatch fired prematurely and Grissom had to scramble quickly out as salty water rushed into the opening.

The wind from the whirling blades of a rescue helicopter drove him beneath the surface for a moment, but his buoyant space suit popped him back up like a cork. He seized a "horse collar" rescue device lowered by the copter and was hoisted to safety.

Meantime, efforts of another helicopter to salvage the water-filled capsule failed and the $5 million space craft with its precious instruments and its firm record of the flight sank beyond hope of recovery in three-mile deep water.

Sentiments of the National Space Agency were summed up by one official who commented: "We've got only one Gus, but we've got plenty of space capsules."

Much Dataelayed

Anyway, most of the desired information came back on radio telemetry and the agency said there would be no delay in the U.S. space program as a result of the mishap.

Ball Used In Niagara Plunge Here

Area residents and tourists passing through Kingston will have an opportunity the next six days to view the metal ball in which William Fitzgerald, of Jamaica, Queens, a former city resident took a plunge over Niagara Falls on July 15.

The ball was set up on the Academy Green this morning and will remain there for public inspection until Thursday, according to Mayor Edwin F. Radel.

To New York Later

Fitzgerald, and his brother Leon, a city patrolman, met with the mayor Friday and arranged to bring the ball to the city so that residents may inspect it before it is taken to New York City.

The Fitzgeralds left here Friday afternoon with a truck donated by Miron Building Products Inc. and carted the ball here from Niagara Falls, arriving at the Academy Green this morning. Employees of the Board of Public Works set the ball on the Green and placed barricades around it.

Fitzgerald, who was first identified as Nathan Boya, told the mayor that being a former Kingstonian he decided to first display the ball in this city.

William Fitzgerald at first said he was Boya, but Thursday he revealed his identity and details of his experience to the press.

Macy's Interested

Fiery Conservatives, Against Wagner, Form Freedom Party

NEW YORK (AP) — There are now two political entities in New York City politics claiming the name "Freedom Party" — but the similarity ends.

A group of self-described "fiery young conservatives" announced Friday they had formed a New York corporation under that name to head off a similar move by the union bosses supporting Mayor (Robert F.) Wagner.

"We don't think too highly of Wagner," said Robert Schuchman, 23-year-old president of the incorporated party.

The New York Central Labor Council on Thursday approved formation of a party under the "Freedom Party" label and endorsed Wagner, who is seeking a third four-year term.

A court test appears possible if the labor group, which represents about one million union members here, insists on using the title.

The state election law provides that "the name of a party shall not include . . . the name or part of the name . . . of an existing party."

The law, however, does not require a political party to be incorporated.

Harry Van Arsdale, head of the Central Labor Council, could not be reached immediately for comment.

Schuchman, a June law graduate of Yale University, said the conservative group has its roots in Young Americans for Freedom, a nationwide organization active on more than 100 college campuses. (Continued on Page 5, Col. 1)

The POWER of FAITH

by Howard Brodie

"Lead, kindly Light . . . Keep thou my feet;
I do not ask to see the distant scene;
one step enough for me."

A weakened, confused young man, becalmed at sea, penned the words of the renowned hymn: Recovering from almost fatal fever and confused with religious questions, 32-year-old John Henry Newman manifested his faith by writing this hymn as his ship was becalmed on a homeward voyage to England in 1833. He lived to be almost 90 and became a Cardinal. His words lived to inspire Presidents McKinley, Franklin Roosevelt and Gandhi, and to strengthen Lincoln Ellsworth when his plane was crippled in the Antarctic.

"So long thy power hath blest me, sure it still will lead me on . . . till the night is gone."

Hymnsing Will Be Held at Stadium Sunday, August 6

The first annual citywide hymnsing will be held at the Dietz Stadium, Sunday, Aug. 6 from 3 to 4 p. m., it was announced today.

Planned and organized by the Hudson Valley Evangelical Ministerial Association, all churches in Kingston and the area are invited to be present.

There will be lively congregational singing led by several song leaders throughout the hour assigned to the hymnsing, including George Ronk of the Church of the Nazarene and Don Charles, director of the Youth for Christ in this area. Other song leaders also will be designated.

There will be an organ concert on the electronic organ by Gil Cicio of the Christian and Missionary Alliance, for 15 minutes preceding the hymnsing.

All are invited to attend this unusual presentation of good music.

There have been monthly singings held in the various churches of the city, Sunday nights from 9 to 10 since February, and this larger effort has grown out of that.

The Rev. Dean Harrison, pastor of the Bethel Assembly of God is the chairman.

There will be no offering and no preaching.

'Operation Abolition' At Alliance Church

A well-documented and thoroughly authenticated film, "Operation Abolition" will be shown Friday evening at the Christian and Missionary Alliance Church. The church is located at 131 Franklin Street.

This film will be shown out of doors, on the church lot adjoining the church, and seats will be provided.

The film, supported and promoted by the United States government through its House Un-American Activities Committee, is an actual filming of the riot that took place when the Communists inspired college students to oppose the hearings held in San Francisco by the House Un-American Activities Committee. These were held to check on the loyalty of important people in government positions where duty provided for by Congress.

The film has attracted nationwide attention; and has been shown before patriotic, school and church groups.

Howard Mansfield of Tillson will be showing the film. All are invited to come.

AREA MORMONS IN PAGEANT—Two Mormon missionaries from this area, Val R. Denton of Driggs, Idaho and Stephen H. Moon, Farmington, Utah, have been selected to portray roles in the 1961 production of the famous Mormon pageant on Hill Cumorah at Palmyra, on August 2, 3, 4 and 5. More than 300 other young Mormon men and women will take part in what is regarded as America's most spectacular outdoor religious pageant. The two missionaries are assigned to the local chapel of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, Lake Katrine. Both of the elders, like 9,000 other Mormon missionaries who voluntarily devote two years of their lives to the Lord's work, will be available for speaking engagements in the area following their participation in the pageant.

No Corn but Too Much Wheat

Overplanting Means $321 Fine for Cadillac-Farmer

BIG FLATS, N. Y. (AP)—Farmer William T. Smith, who bought a $6,100 Cadillac with a government subsidy for not planting corn, overplanted his wheat allotment and owes a fine, a federal agency contends.

Along with a pile of fan mail, including correspondence from Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., a letter arrived from the Chemung County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, Smith said Friday night.

While Goldwater told Smith other farmers "clear across the country" admired his public protest against farm subsidies, the county committee told him it was fining him $321.84 for planting 26 acres in wheat last year, 7.2 acres in excess of his 18.9-acre allotment.

Smith met the Arizona senator earlier this month when he drove the "Cadillac" to Washington. A sign on the car said a government subsidy paid for it. Farmer Smith became news.

The first notice that he had exceeded the 1960 wheat quota, Smith claimed, arrived July 11, after he had gained nationwide publicity.

Another letter, last Tuesday, requested immediate payment of the fine.

Smith plans an appeal to the State Review Committee of the Agriculture Stabilization Committee (an Agriculture Department unit). He said he would be forced to pay the fine if the state committee upheld it.

Last year, the county committee "didn't bother to check" whether he grew wheat, Smith said.

"They knew I raised wheat every year. My wheat crop borders on the highway. It couldn't be hidden very well."

The wheat program is compulsory. Participation in the corn program is voluntary.

The farmer has been in trouble with his wheat allotment in the past. He deliberately exceeded his 1954 quota, he acknowledged, because he felt the government had no business telling him how much he could plant. He paid an $800 fine for exceeding the 1955 quota.

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (AP)—Frederick Bliss, 11, was killed Friday when the bicycle on which he was riding with a brother was thrown under the wheels of a tractor-trailer.

His brother, Gary, 18, suffered a leg laceration and shock.

The boys said the bicycle was thrown under the truck after bouncing across railroad tracks in an alley. The boys' parents are Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Bliss of Syracuse.

Probers Are Not Welcomed, Albany Official Asserts

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP)—John M. Bass, secretary of the Albany County Civil Service Commission, says state investigators no longer are welcome in his office.

Bass fired back at state charges Friday that Albany city and county have inadequate civil service testing programs.

As a result, 62 city firemen and 16 policemen have not taken competitive civil service tests, the State Civil Service Commission said in a report.

The report was the latest in a series of critical blasts aimed by the Republican administration of Gov. Rockefeller at this Democratic stronghold.

Bass wrote H. Elliot Kaplan, Republican chairman of the State Civil Service Commission, that a recent state survey of city and county programs, on which the report was based, had "wasted hundreds of man hours" of his staff's time.

Child Taken From Car Minutes Before Plunge

KINGSTON, Ont. (AP)—A parked car rolled into the Rideau Canal near here Friday night minutes after a 9-month-old American child had been taken from it.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis McCall of Elmira, N. Y., had parked 80 feet from Chaffey's Locks on the Rideau Canal about 15 miles north-east of here.

They left their baby in the car while watching boats pass through the lock. The parents returned and took the child from the car minutes before the brakes failed and it rolled into 10-foot-deep water.

The car jammed the locks, preventing pleasure craft from passing through.

Business Week in Review

By JACK LEFLER

AP Business News Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—New signs of sustained economic progress appeared during the week.

Over the whole business scene, however, hung clouds of uncertainty mushrooming from the Berlin crisis.

President Kennedy declared himself pleased with the progress the country has made economically in the last six months but expressed dissatisfaction with "serious problems of unemployment."

Record Level for GNP

The President reported at his news conference that the gross national product—total output of goods and services—climbed to a record level in the second quarter.

The GNP was estimated at a seasonally adjusted rate of $315 billion, up 2.8 per cent from the first quarter. The previous quarterly high was an annual rate of $300.4 billion in the second quarter of 1960.

American's personal income in June advanced to a record seasonally adjusted annual rate of $16.7 billion. This was a gain of $3.5 billion over May and was attributed mainly to higher factory employment.

Manufacturers' sales of durable goods in June edged up one per cent from May for the fifth straight monthly increase. Factory sales of cars got most of the credit.

A flaw in the picture appeared in new orders received by durable goods manufacturers. They showed a one per cent drop from May.

Hodges Not Worried

However, Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges said he wasn't worried because orders for the last several months had been good.

Home building moved ahead in June for the second consecutive month. It attained a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 1,374,000 units, a gain of 6 per cent over May and seven per cent over a year ago.

C. Elwood Knapp, president of the United States Savings & Loan League, credited a voluntary reduction of interest rates with spurring home building. He said mortgage loans by savings and loan associations in the first six months of this year totaled $7.9 billion, 17 per cent higher than in the same period of 1960.

Corporations saw encouragement in the House Ways and Means Committee's approval of a bill to give business a $1-billion tax credit on money spent to modernize industrial equipment. The government's intention is to increase output and provide jobs for the growing work force.

The plan would allow owners of plants to subtract from their income tax an amount equal to eight per cent of their expenditures on new equipment.

Corporations released an avalanche of second-quarter earnings reports during the week. Profits for the first half of 1961 didn't look too good against 1960 figures but the turn in the economy was apparent when second-quarter figures were considered against the first quarter.

Talks Affect Steel

Negotiations with the United Auto Workers on new contracts not only were of concern to the automobile industry but were having an effect on the steel industry.

Ford Motor Co. contended it would cost more than $500 million over the next two years to adopt only a part of the program submitted to it by the UAW.

Uncertainty was reported to have entered into steel-buying plans of the automakers because of the negotiations. This darkened a previously bright steelmaking outlook for August.

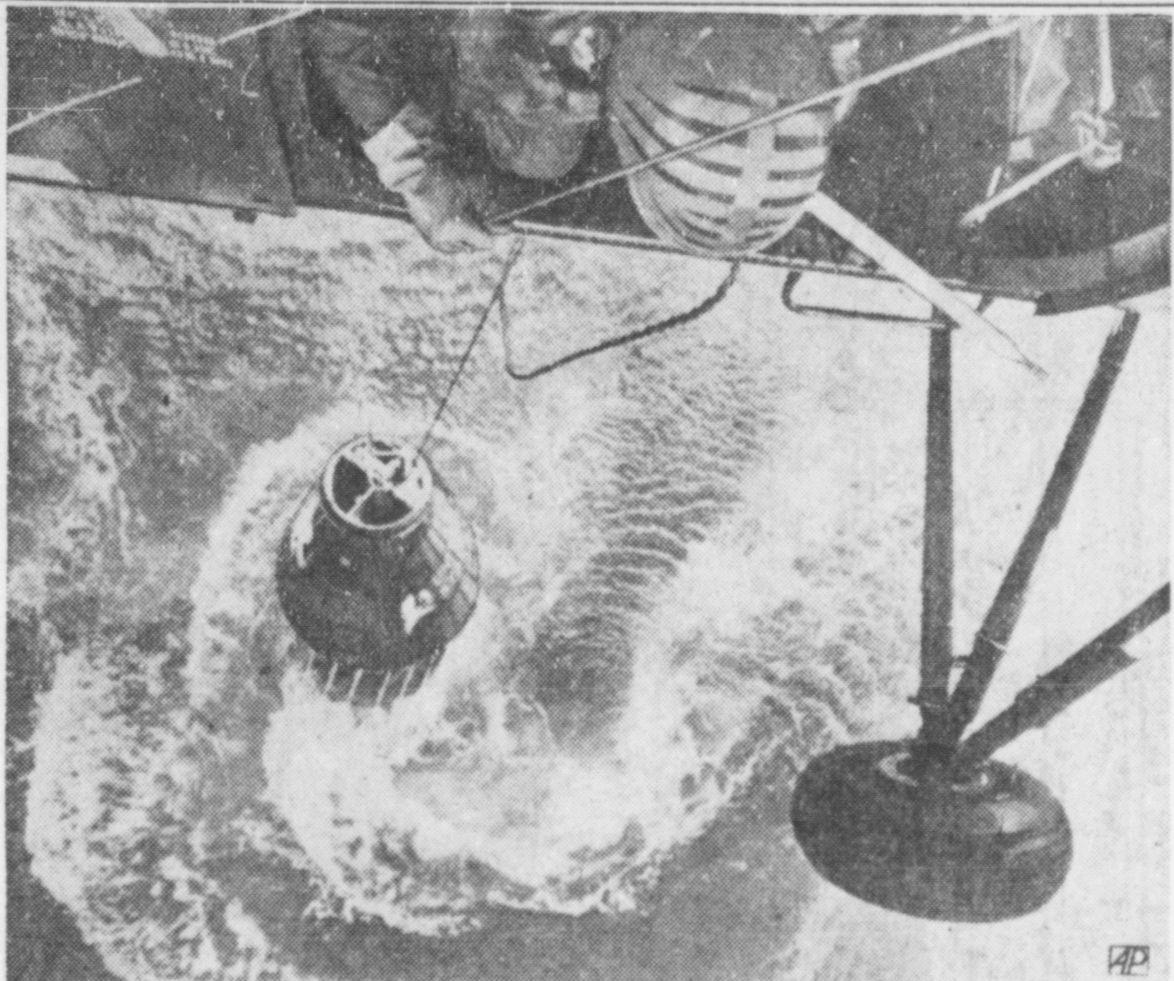

Steel production last week increased 4.6 per cent from the previous week to 1,860,000 tons after six consecutive weeks of decline.

Carmakers built their three-millionth passenger car of the year but were well over a million behind the pace of last year. With model changeovers under way, production for the week dropped to an estimated 105,000 from 127,260 the previous week.

Volume on the New York Stock Exchange this week totaled 13,552,340 shares compared with 14,844,700 the previous week. Bond sales on the exchange were $31,549,000 (par value) against $31,712,000 week ago.

Briefly Around

Briefly around the business scene: At Parker, Davis & Co. in Detroit, 450 women are giving up one to two weeks of work to allow the rehiring of laid-off workers. . . . Fire losses in the United States in June totaled $103,348,000, up 24.8 per cent from June 1960. . . . Forty-one million American workers were covered by group life insurance last year. A survey shows that one out of five families living in rented residences plan to move before the end of the year. . . . ## Body of Missing Dentist Found, Gone Since June

SOUTH HERO, Vt. (AP)—The body of a Pittsfield, Mass., dentist has been found floating in Lake Champlain. Dr. Bernard Mack and the others vanished on a June 25 fishing trip.

Police said an autopsy will be performed today to determine the cause of Mack's death. The body was found near Fish Bladder Island, in the area where the bodies of two other Pittsfield men were recovered.

A state pathologist ruled Dr. David Greengold, 50, and Irving Mitkoff, 54, died of electric shock. A storm swept the big lake while the three Massachusetts men and Larry Hayden, 15, of Essex Junction, were out in a small boat. Hayden's body has not been found.

Slayer Ends Life

BERLIN (AP)—Court officials said today a man who confessed to killing Jews and mental defectives in World War II hanged himself in a West Berlin prison cell.

He was identified as Erich Gneuwich, 55, a former member of the SS. He had told questioners he took part in Nazi killings in Eastern Europe.

Held in Moabit Prison "under observation" Thursday night he tied a bed sheet to an electric wire from the ceiling and hanged himself.

West German authorities reportedly had been looking for him for two years and found him working as a janitor in a West Berlin school.

Shigeko Is Critical

TOKYO (AP)—Emperor Hirohito's eldest daughter, Mrs. Shigeko Higashikuni, was reported in critical condition today.

The 35-year-old former Princess Teru has been suffering from adhesion of the colon and abscess of the abdominal wall since last November.

She married a commoner and gave up her title after World War II.

Missionaries Depart

HAVANA (AP)—Another 300 Spanish priests, nuns and religious brothers sailed for home Friday night aboard the liner Marques de Comillas in the mass exodus of Roman Catholic missionaries from Cuba. Since Prime Minister Fidel Castro began his campaign in May to expel foreign clergy, about 1,800 Spaniards have left.

Killed in Crash

Widow Desires Stocks
With Growth, Income

Q—"I am a widow with no pension to look forward to except Social Security. I invested for growth, but I'm afraid not too well, in most instances. I own Montgomery Ward, Avco, Colorado Fuel & Iron, Martin, California Electric, and Westinghouse. What do you think of the above for growth and income?"

—E.G.

A—"It's pleasant to be able to tell you that you're not too badly off as regards growth and income. There are changes you can make which should strengthen your growth position, and I'm going to make some suggestions within the framework of your need for income. It is very easy to become confused about the distinction between a real growth issue and a stock which can appreciate for a time simply because of market or business conditions. Your true growth situation is marked by strong, alert management; steadily rising earnings; relatively high profit margins; and aggressive merchandising.

Montgomery Ward and Westinghouse certainly don't meet these requirements. Neither of these companies has made any real earnings headway since 1950. I would sell both and replace them with Long Island Lighting and American Telephone which do measure up.

Colorado Fuel & Iron is a rather weak cyclical steel which pays no dividend. I would switch this stock into Fairmont Foods, an excellent growth issue, which does.

California Electric is a fine holding for you. And although Avco and Martin are mostly in defense business, which is not by definition a growth area, both are good stocks and should be held.

Q—"My widowed mother is 68 and has $4,000 in savings banks. What bonds would you recommend as investments to give her a greater return?"

—J. K.

A—"I suggest that your mother buy $1,000 each of Ohio Edison 4 1/2% due 1991, and Consolidated Edison of New York 4 1/2% due 1991. These are both high-grade issues selling fractionally above 100. Since bonds fluctuate in price, although to a lower degree than stocks, I think it might be wise for her to keep at least $2,000 in a savings bank, where her principal would be intact.

Leroy Winchell was elected superintendent of grounds, defeating Mark Byer, Howard Ostrand, Paul Pettinato, Mickey Gallagher, Stan Witko and Bert Gugliemetti. Cecile Rubin was elected playground nurse. Others seeking the post were Susan Bush, Anita Kenny, Jan Hoyt and Nancy Mancuso.

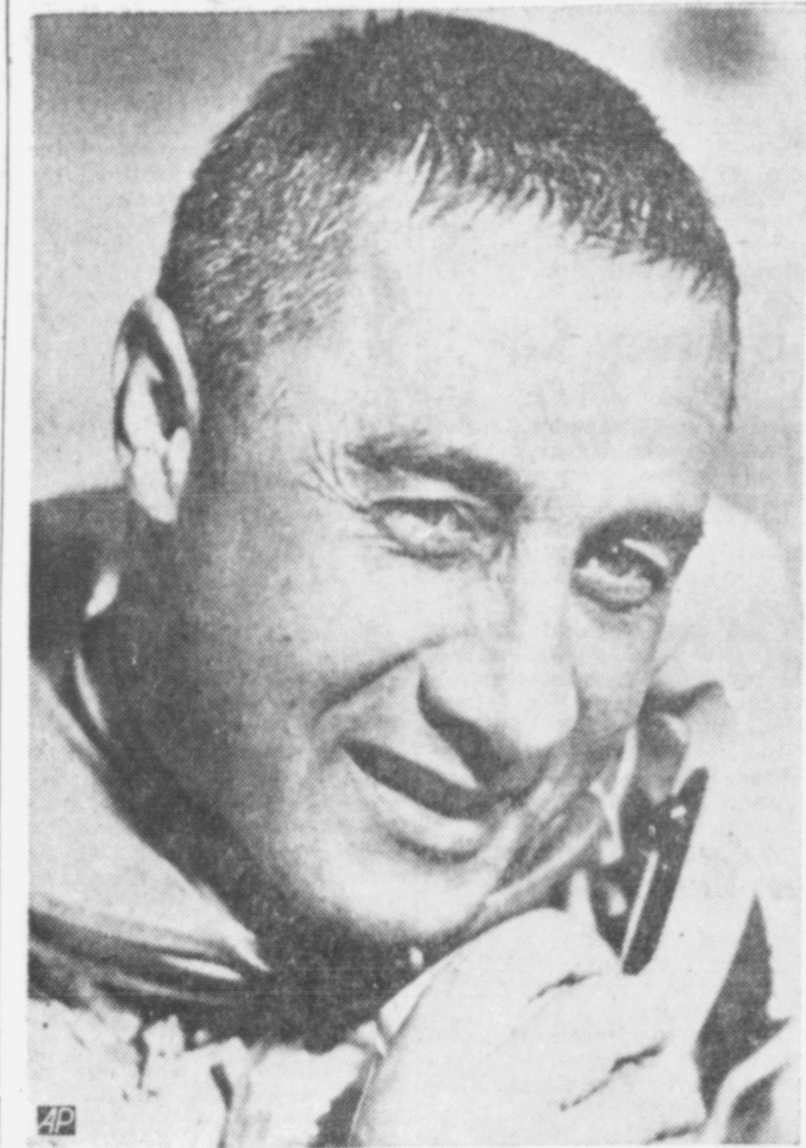

The first baseball game of the season was played Wednesday. The Loveless' team battled the Winchell's to a 14 to 14 tie. Mickey Gallagher's home run in the sixth tied the score for the Winchell's.

The baseball program has been set up for boys 8 to 12. The Little League games are played Monday and Friday nights and the Babe Ruth games are scheduled Wednesday nights.

About 86 children have registered at the Phoenicia playground and 32 at Shandaken. All children are invited to participate. Pre-school children must be accompanied by an older brother or sister.

Friends Inside?

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—William Saied is quitting as assistant Oklahoma County attorney to go into private practice—but he plans to keep a sharp eye on 16 small brass keys he's handed out the past two years. Saied gave each young first offender who received a suspended sentence one of the keys, and told them: "This key will fit the front door of the McAlester prison. If you bring it back and are convicted again it will let you in. It is up to you to keep this key as a reminder to stay out of trouble." So far, none of the 16 keys has been returned, he said, adding, "I intend to keep checking those boys to find out how they turn out."

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, JULY 22, 1961

UP AGAINST BYRD

Anyone who has political aspirations in Virginia must be courageous and venture some to buck the conservative Democratic machine of Sen. Harry F. Byrd. The 74-year-old patriarch has held a firm grip on Virginia politics throughout his 28 years in Washington.

He again proved his political power when the Byrd-supported slate scored a clean sweep in the state's primary. Albert S. Harrison, Jr., won an impressive victory over A. E. W. Stephens for governor.

Stephens, the present lieutenant governor, broke with Byrd to strike out on his own. He called the machine "ruthless" and said its ultra-conservatism was "reactionary." The voters were not impressed. Byrd remained calm, so confident of the results that he limited his campaign efforts to the release of a letter Stephens wrote him in December soliciting the senator's support.

For years Byrd has been the Senate's most adamant foe of government spending. His efforts to hold down the federal budget have repeatedly been unsuccessful but his political success in Virginia has been unflinching.

EDEN'S AN EARL

When a college professor retires, he is made emeritus, to do him honor and at the same time make it clear that his active days are over. In much the same way Anthony Eden, the former premier of Great Britain, has now been made an earl.

It was not always so. When Benjamin Disraeli was made Earl of Beaconsfield, he continued as premier. Since, then, however, premiers have declined peerages because they were not ready to go on the shelf. Gladstone refused an earldom. When Herbert H. Asquith and David Lloyd George, premiers during World War I, ceased to be politically active, they were made earls.

Now Eden joins them. Only 64, he might have been expected to take a prominent part in statesmanship for years. But his health is not good, and his premiership disappointed those who had detected in his previous career signs of uncommon ability.

This custom of bestowing peerages on retired statesmen would have an American parallel if we made former presidents and presidential candidates honorary members of the Senate. This would give the country the benefit of their wisdom, and be fitting recognition of their achievements.

NO WAR ON CITIES?

It is hard to decide whether a pact to exclude cities from bombing would be a credit to man's rationality or confirmation of his degeneracy. Nonetheless, informal talks have begun among Western statesmen to see what can be done to insure the survival of the world's great urban areas in the event of nuclear war.

The attempt is born primarily of pessimism over the seeming hopelessness of reaching any comprehensive disarmament agreement with the Communist bloc. If we must resign ourselves to the insanity of nuclear warfare, it is argued, maybe the antagonists can at least be sane enough to arrange beforehand to forego destruction of each others' cities. Military experts say there are also strategic reasons why such a pact should be possible.

The refinement, if this word can be used, of nuclear weapons obviates the need to attack urban areas. Apparently the jest is no longer appropriate that the safest place in the next war will be in the infantry. Recent developments in arms have made a nation's forces in the field vulnerable as they have never been before. For now they represent the chief target of attack. The old concept of military attrition against supply centers no longer applies.

Though discussions of this nature bear a nightmarish quality, in view of man's hopeless drift toward war something must be done to plan to save as many pieces of his civilization as possible. If an agreement

'These Days'

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY
A TELLING INCIDENT

On May 26, 1945, Harry Hopkins met Stalin in the Kremlin to discuss many very important subjects.

For some time prior to this meeting, President Harry Truman and Prime Minister Winston Churchill had been maneuvering to get Stalin to agree to some kind of a Summit meeting but Stalin had avoided a decision. Finally, Hopkins was sent to the Kremlin to make arrangements for what eventually became the Potsdam Conference.

Hopkins explained that President Truman asked him, Hopkins, to go to Moscow because: "... he thought the Marshal would be interested in a brief description of President Roosevelt's state of mind just prior to his death. He said that on the way back from Yalta it had been clear to him that President Roosevelt was very tired and that his energy was on the decline." Stalin pushed aside this emotional description by saying that Lenin also died of a cerebral hemorrhage following a stroke. Stalin apparently wanted to get on with the business on hand, he knowing that Hopkins, himself, was a very sick man who had not much longer to live and had not made this long trip to discuss the nature of Roosevelt's death.

However Hopkins persisted and reminded Stalin how much faith Roosevelt had in Soviet Russia and that Roosevelt was responsible for initiating the program of aid to Soviet Russia. Hopkins then went on to explain that since Roosevelt's death, the American people were not as enthusiastic about Soviet Russia as they had been. Hopkins said:

"Two months ago there had been overwhelming sympathy among the American people for the Soviet Union and complete support for President Roosevelt's policies which the Marshal knew so well. This sympathy and support came primarily because of the brilliant achievements of the Soviet Union in the war and partly from President Roosevelt's leadership and the magnificent way in which our two countries had worked together to bring about the defeat of Germany. The American people at that time hoped and confidently believed that the two countries could work together in peace as well as they had in war."

Hopkins made the point that American opinion was turning anti-Russian:

"He said he wished to assure the Marshal with all the earnestness at his command that this body of American public opinion who had been the constant support of the Roosevelt policies were seriously disturbed about their relations with Russia. In fact, in the last six weeks deterioration of public opinion had been so serious as to affect adversely the relations between our two countries."

Hopkins then explained the nature of Roosevelt's foreign policy:

"... the cardinal basis of President Roosevelt's policy which the American people had fully supported had been the concept that the interests of the United States were world wide and not confined to North and South America and the Pacific Ocean and it was this concept that had led to the many conferences concerning the peace of the world which President Roosevelt had with Marshal Stalin. President Roosevelt had believed that the Soviet Union had likewise world-wide interests and that the two countries would work out together any political or economic considerations at issue between them."

We come here to the core of the problem facing us today. Apparently it was Roosevelt's plan to have a two nation control of the world. The United States and Soviet Russia would be the masters and all other countries would fit into place. Stalin made no comment on this particular subject. Instead Stalin tried to get the discussion off on a tangent, namely that the Conservative Party in Great Britain was against Soviet Russia and that therefore Soviet Russia had to have a government in Poland that was friendly to Soviet Russia. Harry Hopkins assured Stalin that "... the United States would desire a Poland friendly to the Soviet Union and in fact desired to see friendly countries all along the Soviet borders."

Good-bye, Poland; Good-bye Czechoslovakia, Hungary, and all the so-called liberated countries! At any rate, Stalin got off on a side-line, discussing whether Hitler was alive or dead.

So here we have it, the hidden fact, the suppressed item that led to Potsdam. We were assured that there were no secret treaties at Potsdam and there probably were no treaties—but secret arrangements in the volumes now available.

The Mature Parent
Childbearing Involves
More Than You Think

MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Dear Mrs. Lawrence:
I expect my first baby soon. My own mother is dead; my husband has asked his mother to come and help when I get out of the hospital. Since he told me this, I've been very upset. She was several months ago when I was still having dizzy spells and getting sick at my stomach. If I laid down she'd tell me to stop pampering myself. Once she accused me of putting on because I couldn't cook some sausages.

ANSWER: Tell your doctor how you feel. Ask him to inform your husband that a new mother requires respect for childbearing.

I hope that you will use this opportunity to assert your right to this respect.

As things are, you are going to have to assert it again and again.
For despite America's annual immersion in the sticky syrup of Mother's Day sentiment, childbearing is badly belittled in this country.

Your struggle to bring new life into the world is disparaged, not only by jealous people like your mother-in-law, but by "experts" who want to bounce you out of bed the day after your baby is born.

Your need for sleep and rest will be ignored by "demand feeding" fanatics who will want you to be on top for your baby every moment of the day and night.

Before you've had time to learn to feel much of anything but mingled awe and anxiety for him, your child care books will be hammering at you for the "unconditional love" that will determine your competence as a mother.

In short, if you don't want to start thinking of yourself as a mechanical incubator without needs for tenderness and appreciation you must begin right now to demand respect for the profound emotional and bodily adventure that lies ahead of you.

The best book I know for a prospective mother is "Don't Be Afraid of Your Child" by Dr. Hilde Bruch. Ask your library for it. In the meantime here is the quote to remember: "When a mother feels comfortable she can make her baby feel comfortable, too."

I'm glad you distrust this relative who treats childbearing like tooth extraction. Get your doctor's support of your distrust. Then read Dr. Bruch who is on to all the tricks by which young mothers are made to feel incidental and incompetent by those who profit economically from them. Behind the office door of Vice Adm. John Hayward, deputy chief of naval operations for development, hangs a dart board labeled "Top Level Decision-Maker." The four quadrants of the board are each divided into a "yes" and a "no" section.

The quadrants are labeled: "Defer to Committee," "Table for 30 Days," "Play Safe. Employ Doubletalk," and "Decide Only after Three Martinis."

When last seen, a dart was resting in the "yes" section of "Decide Only after Three Martinis."

Haggerty Departs
To Attend Annual
Parley in India

Announcement has been made that Dr. William J. Haggerty, president of the State University College of Education here, will leave this weekend for New Delhi, India, where he will preside at the annual meeting of the International Council on Education for Teachers. He was one of the founders of the Council in Oxford, England, in 1953 and was elected president of the organization for a three-year term in 1958, when the Council met in Rome, Italy.

The officers and members of the ICET come from many countries of North and South America, Asia, and Africa. Its purpose is to bring persons interested in teacher education together and to publish material about the way teachers are prepared in different parts of the world.

ICET is an international member of the World Confederation of Organizations of the Teaching Profession — WCOTP which is also meeting in New Delhi this summer. The WCOTP which was founded in Copenhagen in 1952, brought together three international teachers' organizations, one of which was the World Organization of the Teaching Profession, which had been founded in 1946 in Endicott, N. Y. Today, WCOTP membership includes several million teacher organizations located in 68 countries of the world outside the iron curtain.

President Haggerty will represent in addition to ICET the college here, and will also be the official delegate of the American Association of college of Teacher Education of the WCOTP meeting.

During the 1952-53 school year, President Haggerty spent a year in India as an educational consultant to the government of India under the Point Four Program and represented the United States as a delegate to the UNESCO conference on Free and Compulsory Education which was conducted in Bombay in 1952.

In addition to attending the meeting in India, President Haggerty will also travel to several countries enroute to confer with various leaders of education, including D. J. Johnson of the University of London who is international secretary-treasurer of ICET.

An advocate of educational emphasis on world understanding and international affairs, Dr. Haggerty has, in 17 years as president of the college, fostered the development of a curriculum at New Paltz which has received world-wide recognition for courses dealing with other countries of the world. He has served on committees for many educational organizations and has been active in numerous organizations dealing with international affairs.

Grisson himself saw a television film showing of his flight after arrival here. He spent a relaxed evening, looked in briefly on a celebration in his honor, then went to bed about 9 p.m.

Earlier, the crew-cut man with an easy smile but few words underwent a physical checkup and reported on the many vital details of his 16-minute flight.

"He swallowed lots of water and spent a lot of energy staying aloft," said Lt. Col. William Douglas, personal physician for the astronaut. "But he didn't become sick."

Faces Other Tests

Today, a surgeon, an eye specialist, a neurologist and an internist turned to the second half of the exhaustive medical examination. Psychologists questioned Grissom, too, and engineers talked about the premature blow-out of the capsule escape hatch. They want to eliminate that "bug" in a hurry.

As Grissom let his nerves unwind on this British island, his wife, Betty, did the same back in Newport News, Va.

"Now I can rest for a few days and get back to normal," she said after watching the thrill-packed show on television. "I almost cried when the capsule sank."

In Mitchell, Ind., Dennis Grissom went through "the longest 15 minutes in my life" as his son rode a blazing Redstone rocket into space and plummeted back to his narrow escape in the churning sea. The father was proud but his most powerful emotion was fear.

There was no definite word from the space agency on whether there would be any more short hops before the attempt to put an astronaut into orbit with an Atlas missile late this year or early in 1962. Other Redstone rockets are available for sub-orbital missions if needed.

During his flight from Cape Canaveral to an ocean target near the prime recovery ship, the aircraft carrier Randolph, Grissom said he looked down on a view so enthralling that he forgot for a moment that he had work to do.

Schuchman said his party would announce Tuesday whether it would enter its own candidates in the fall election or endorse the candidates of other parties.

"What we're after," he said, "is to influence opinion in the two major parties and to concentrate on the marginal election districts."

Opposes Lefkowitz

One conservative candidate already is entered in the citywide election campaign. He is Vito P. Battista, who is running against Atty. Gen. Louis J. Lefkowitz for the Republican nomination for mayor.

Schuchman said the articles of incorporation for the "Freedom Party" have been approved by John L. Flynn of the State Supreme Court, and by Secretary of State Caroline K. Simon.

The chairman of the new party's board of directors is Davis Franke, a writer with National Review, a conservative magazine. Executive director is William S. P. Cotter, organizational director of Young Americans for Freedom.

resolution offered by Attorney Ward Ingalsbe Jr., of Kingston.

Endorsed for Bench

Supreme Court Justice Louis G. Bruhn, appointed to the Supreme court bench by Governor Rockefeller, was unanimously endorsed for nomination as a justice of the Supreme Court for the Third Judicial District by resolution offered by Attorney Joseph Saccoman of Kingston, who has announced his intention to seek the Republican designation for City Judge at the city convention Monday night at the Ulster county court house.

The resolution endorsing Justice Bruhn for nomination at the Judicial Convention pointed out that Justice Bruhn had been appointed to office as a Supreme Court Justice by Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller and took office on Jan. 1, 1961, having previously served as Ulster County Judge and Judge of the Children's Court.

Record Is Praised

Referring to his splendid record since he became Supreme Court Justice the resolution in part read:

"Whereas, during his tenure of office as a Justice of the Supreme Court and prior thereto as County Judge of Ulster County, he has made an outstanding record as a conscientious, studious, thorough, courteous, patient, just and impartial jurist, and

Whereas, he has so conducted his high office as to bring credit and honor to the district, our county and himself,

Now, therefore, be it resolved that this convention unanimously endorse Louis G. Bruhn for nomination as a Justice of the Supreme Court for the Third Judicial District."

During the session Joseph Martorana of Town of Plattekill, deputy clerk of the Ulster County Board of Supervisors, spoke on the procedures regarding absentee and military ballots.

Recommended Delegates

Recommended by the convention as delegates and alternate delegates to the Republican Third Judicial Convention were:

James J. Abernethy, Frank Compochiaro, Sherwood Davis, N. LeVan Haver, Charles F. Kaiser Jr., Morris, John B. Frederick H. Stang, John B. Sterley and Francis J. Vogt, delegates. Alternate delegates are: Robert H. Carnright, James Murray, Frank Decker, Louis P. Francello, Harry Gold, Richard V. Lent, Louis A. DiDonna, George Rask Jr., and Thomas P. Saccoman.

Miss Linda Lawrence of Kingston offered a resolution that a committee on vacancies be named.

At the time of going to press the convention was still in progress.

Three Sessions Monday

Local political activity will continue Monday with three important unofficial conventions.

At 8 p.m. Monday the Kingston Republican city convention will convene at the Ulster County Court House, Wall Street.

In the field at present for nomination of the Republican party for mayor are John J. Schwenk, former alderman-at-large; Alderman Samuel J. Perry of the Eighth Ward and Stephen Smith, a local contractor.

Benjamin Schechter, former member of the city water board, hopes to gain the alderman-at-large spot on the November GOP ticket.

Attorney Joseph Saccoman has announced his candidacy for city judge on the ticket.

Democratic party members will meet in two sessions at municipal auditorium Monday, first for the county meeting at 8 o'clock followed by the city convention.

Incumbent Mayor Edwin F. Radel will seek another term at the city convention and his running mate is expected to be Harold Kaye, present alderman-at-large.

City Judge Aaron E. Klein

will seek another term.

Keynote Excerpts

Following are excerpts of the keynote's address:

Young Republicans are working on a year round program with a lot of office planning throughout the year; this work gives committees two months out of the year to campaign for candidates; Young Republican Clubs should work independently under guidance of senior clubs; they should lay campaign plans early and blend them with those of senior GOP clubs to relieve the senior workers of a vast amount of work and assure a well rounded campaign.

Elias said he sees Young Republican Clubs as a combination recruiting officer and an on the job training school. He emphasized that workers of all ages are needed for the purpose of continuing a strong organization.

Through the Young Republicans, he said, there was an influx of new young blood in the party. He stated that the individual worker is a most important need in a political organization. He pointed out there were 200 Young Republican Clubs in New York State, an increase of 30 in the last 15 months. These clubs are staffed by some 75,000 unpaid workers constantly on the job for the good of the party.

Rifle and machinegun fire was heard over the telephone line.

"No one really knows what is going on," said one telephone report. "The Tunisians are firing on the French troops from rooftops and windows, but there appears to be no organized resistance."

Tanks At Vital Points

French tanks held strategic points of the city, 40 miles east of Tunis.

Roadblocks manned by French troops hold a large perimeter around the naval base — three miles south of Bizerte — from which the Tunisians are trying to drive them.

In Tunis rumors among the citizens spoke of French tanks moving toward Tunis. There was no confirmation of any kind to these rumors.

The Tunisian government radio continued to blame martial music and appeals of "to arms!"

Life in the capital was normal on the surface except for growing groups of tense Tunisians lining some of the streets.

Tunisian President Habib Bourguiba has called for an emergency session of the Arab League, which he had boycotted for several years. Some observers saw a forging of Arab unity in the face of the Bizerte crisis.

Bitterness Increases

Meanwhile, bitterness against the West increased among average Tunisians. They accused the West of tolerating what they called French aggressive action at Bizerte.

"You are letting us down," a tearful Tunisian told newsmen. His companion shouted: "You will pay for it dearly."

French units that attacked by land, sea and air Friday claimed control of high ground commanding the vital canal that links the sprawling French military base with the Mediterranean Sea.

Officials in Paris said the sole purpose of the French military action is to safeguard land and sea approaches to the base threatened by Tunisian barricades.

A French spokesman told the U.N. Security Council his country earnestly desired an end to the conflict. He renewed France's offer to accept an immediate ceasefire to be followed by negotiations on a withdrawal from the base when conditions return to normal.

Tank-supported columns, land sea planes and French warships took part in Friday's assault. Main targets were the barriers set up by Tunisian soldiers five days ago.

Planes Straf Post

French planes strafed a Tunisian military post in the city and supported attacks against roadblocks between the main naval base and such other installations as repair shops, dumps and landing strips.

Tunisia's government radio said at least 150 Tunisians died in the attack.

It also charged that 100 Tunisian volunteers moving to claim a slice of French-held Sahara 500 miles to the south were killed when French planes attacked with jet-fuelled napalm bombs. The French denied using napalm bombs anywhere in Tunisia.

The French reported losses of 5 dead and 30 wounded since shooting broke out four days ago in the undeclared war in this former French protectorate.

Soviets Back Move

At U.N. headquarters in New York, Tunisia—with Soviet backing—accused France of criminal aggression and called on the Security Council to help remove all French military forces from Tunisia.

France replied that Tunisia started the fighting by firing the first shots Wednesday and claimed French forces reacted in self-defense.

the Bizerte crisis, which he compared to "that of France." But he added promptly that he understood the United States "has to be considerate with France."

Although his country was being mobilized for "war until victory" and new reports of dead and wounded poured from embattled Bizerte, Bourguiba did not threaten France nor French citizens in Tunisia.

He vowed Tunisian resistance will continue until a political settlement is reached. He said the only possible settlement is evacuation of Tunisia by the French.

Travelers from Bizerte spoke of continued fighting in the city, where pockets of Tunisian resistance were being reduced by French tank and mortar fire.

Snipers in Action

Snipers fired at the French from rooftops and windows. One organized group of resistance was reported in an area known as "the Arab city."

Bourguiba, whose government budget is about 60 per cent supported by the United States, told his people in a radio address:

"It is painful to see the United States and Great Britain take the same position as France while blood flows at Bizerte and hundreds are dying."

Both the United States and Britain have appealed to France and Tunisia to stop shooting and settle their dispute over the Bizerte base by negotiation.

The United States has taken this stand in the United Nations Security Council debate on the crisis while the Soviet Union has openly backed Tunisia.

Bourguiba declared Tunisia will resist French troops until the problem of the Bizerte base is settled politically.

Pledges Resistance

He paid tribute to the determination to resist and the morale of the country in the face of the crisis.

"This is more of a psychological than military problem," he declared in his French-language speech.

French citizens of Bizerte told the Associated Press offices in Tunis by telephone that Tunisian snipers were firing at French troops deploying through the town.

Demos at Odds Over Memo to Office of Rusk

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two Democratic senators are at odds over a confidential memorandum from one of them to the Defense Department.

Principals in the case are Sens. J. William Fulbright of Arkansas and Strom Thurmond of South Carolina.

Fulbright said Friday that he had sent the memo to Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara objecting to military sponsorship of meetings featuring "extremist speeches" by outsiders.

"The point I wanted to make," Fulbright said, "was that it is not the traditional role of the military to sponsor meetings weighted to one side of a political subject."

Thurmond, at a news conference following Fulbright's remarks, denounced the memorandum as "a dastardly attempt to intimidate the commanders of U.S. armed forces."

Fulbright said the principal theme of some meetings sponsored by generals and admirals has been "that the greatest danger to this country is internal communism, and that communism has infiltrated our schools and our churches and dominates our government."

Thurmond, himself a major general in the Army reserves, termed the memo an effort to prevent U.S. commanders from teaching their troops "the nature of the menace of world communism." The memorandum was followed by new Defense Department restrictions on top military men, instructing them to stick to military matters in their public speeches.

Fulbright said the memo was prepared for his personal use by the staff of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, of which he is chairman, but was in no sense a committee document.

He said he sent copies to President Kennedy as well as to McNamara and believed "someone at the Pentagon" had leaked its contents.

Madison Crash Takes Two Lives

HAMILTON, N.Y. (AP) — Two young men were killed and another man was injured in a one-car crash in Route 12B two miles south of this Madison County community early today.

Police said the dead were Ronald S. Sacco, 21, of Hamilton, and Carlton M. McLean, 20, of Hubbardsville.

Richard Chapin, 23, of Hamilton, the operator of the car, was in fair condition at Norwich Hospital.

Treaty signed after Paris granted Tunisia independence in 1956. The French have refused to negotiate for a withdrawal under Tunisian threats.

The British government joined the United States in appealing to both France and Tunisia to stop fighting and seek a peaceful solution. British Foreign Secretary Lord Home held separate conferences with the French and Tunisian ambassadors. There was no immediate indication of their reaction.

Nicaragua Alerted for Anna Storm

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Warnings for all residents of northeastern Nicaragua and eastern Honduras to prepare for heavy rains, high tides and winds up to 115 miles per hour were issued today as Hurricane Anna shrieked along a westward course in the Caribbean.

The Miami Weather Bureau says the season's first tropical storm will reach the Nicaragua coast late today or early tonight.

Anna at 5 a.m. was located near latitude 13.4 north, longitude 78.0 west, or about 350 statute miles east of Puerto Cabezas, on the upper Nicaraguan coast.

The hurricane is moving westward about 20 m.p.h. Little change in size or intensity is expected as the storm continues toward land.

It posed no threat to the U.S. mainland.

"Highest winds are estimated 100 m.p.h. near the center and gales extend out 150 miles to the north and 75 miles to the south," the Weather Bureau said in an advisory.

Love or Jail, This Judge Says

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A municipal judge in suburban Downey, accused of offering a woman defendant her choice of romance or jail, faces a Superior Court hearing Tuesday on a bribery charge.

District attorney's investigators Friday arrested Judge Lynn W. Johnston, 42, on the complaint of Miss Viana Dolphus, 26, of Anaheim, Calif.

Arresting officers said Judge Johnston, father of three, had registered at a Seal Beach motel Thursday under an assumed name and was in the company of Miss Dolphus when they arrived.

Investigators said Miss Dolphus was instructed to arrange a rendezvous with the judge after she reported his asserted overtures. She said she was a defendant in a $25 forgery case in his court and was due for sentence when she was approached.

The district attorney's office said they were investigating reports several other women defendants received similar offers.

Former Banker To Face Charge

NEW YORK (AP) — "Oh, I'm not greedy that way."

That, police said, is how the former head teller of a Brooklyn branch bank explained why he embezzled only $36,249.56. They said he could easily have taken more.

Robert Victor Brovakos, 35, was held in $50,000 bail Friday on a charge of embezzling that amount from the Commercial Bank of North America's Kings Highway branch last Nov. 10. The FBI said he lost the money in the gambling spree in Las Vegas and West Coast cities.

Brovakos, by the way, reportedly contested the bank's total, contending he didn't take the $6 cents.

"I certainly never took any change," he was quoted as saying.

Tornadoes Lash Midwest Areas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Showers spattered many sections of the nation today after an evening of wild Midwest weather brought widespread damage to several states.

Numerous funnel clouds snaked across Illinois, Indiana and Missouri, damaging houses and barns, ripping up trees, downing power lines and ruining crops. No deaths but a few minor injuries were reported.

What appeared to be a tornado roared across a farm near Mineral, Ill., knocking down part of a barn and machine shed and leaving a corn field "as if a roller had gone over it," as a neighbor described the damage.

One twister touched down twice in Warren County, Ind., damaging a house and three barns. Another destroyed a house near Cloverdale, but the occupants escaped injury.

Heavy winds and rain whipped St. Louis and two women were cut and bruised when the wind shattered a plate glass store window.

In another outbreak of turbulence, a tornado caused slight damage when it skipped into the outskirts of Wichita Falls, Tex., during a heavy rain. Cloudbursts sent water running into scores of homes at Midland. Farm fields were flooded and highways closed as nearly 8 inches of rain drenched northern Texas.

Rain continued early today from the southern Plains into the Great Lakes area in the far Northwest and parts of the Dakotas. Forecasts called for more rain during the day in the southern Rockies, over most of the Mississippi Valley and eastward to the Atlantic

Insurance—A disability income provision may be added to most GI insurance policies for a small additional premium. This total disability income provision pays a monthly income to an insured who holds it while he is disabled and unable to work. The monthly income payable under this provision is $10 for each $1000 of GI insurance in force to which the disability income provision is added. An insured who adds the disability income provision to a $10,000 policy would receive $100 a month disability benefit income beginning with the first day of the seventh month after the disability started. These payments are designed to protect the insured against long periods of disability and once they are started they can continue for as long as the insured is disabled. Complete information and premium rates for this insurance may be obtained from this agency.

Civil Service—Veterans with VA compensation or non-service pensions may be entitled to Federal civil service disabled veterans preference. This means that veterans in receipt of non-service connected pensions, as well as veterans service connected conditions, can request preference as a disabled veteran when applying for a Federal government job. The VA will furnish a statement of such disability status for the Federal Civil Service Commission on request of the veteran.

Education—Children of peace-time veterans; who have died of service-incurred disabilities since the end of the Korean conflict, are eligible for benefits under the Federal War Orphans Education Assistance Act. This is the Federal legislation which authorizes education and vocational training for children of servicemen who died on active duty in World War 2 and the Korean campaign or veterans of service in such war periods who died later due to wounds, sickness or disabilities incurred during their periods of service.

Medical—A veteran may be furnished an invalid lift if medically indicated under the terms of the current pension law or the new pension law PL 86-211, if he is in receipt of non-service connection pension and in need of a regular aid and attendance.

Pension—Widows of servicemen or veterans in receipt of VA compensation or pension must immediately notify the VA if they remarry. The marriage of a child of any deceased serviceman or veteran for whom compensation or pension is being paid should also be reported immediately to the VA. Questions about the rights and benefits of veterans, servicemen or their dependents may be submitted for individual attention to the New York State Division of Veterans Affairs and the Ulster County Veterans Service Agency at 32 Main Street, Kingston, N. Y., Ellenville, Kerhonkson and Highland.

Modern Bungalow Plan Has Versatile Third Bedroom

(By Associated Architects)

To answer the needs of many families who want their home to be a modern bungalow, Associated Architects have come up with a house plan called "The Flint."

Overall, "The Flint" occupies a space somewhat larger than 26 by 33 feet, including a garage attached to the house but set back. The rear porch provides a sheltered passageway between them.

If any one word sums up the character of this home, it is "roominess." The living room is 12½ by 21½ feet, large enough to include a dining alcove. To give the room the light and ventilation it deserves, Associated Architects have incorporated a big window in the dining area and a bow window at the front of the living room. The fireplace, in its central position, permits furniture to be grouped with ease.

There are spacious closets in the three bedrooms, closets with sliding doors for space saving as well as modern appearance. Corner windows in two of the rooms and a double window in the third make sure all of the rooms will get plenty of light.

The third bedroom has a direct passage to the dining room and kitchen. This makes it especially suitable as a nursery, because it allows Mother to work in the kitchen or even outside in the back, confident that she can reach baby quickly, should the need arise. Of course, this room is equally useful as a bedroom for adults.

The working area of the kitchen is laid out to save the homemaker steps; its "L" shape puts storage and food preparation areas within a pace or two of each other. And the comfortable nook at one end of the kitchen gives the assurance of comfortable, pleasant dining.

Note in the accompanying floor plan that the bath is located centrally, and that it has a built-in vanity, an accessory any woman will appreciate. Another desirable feature is the vestibule created by the decorative screen just inside the front door; there is a coat closet here for the convenience of guests and family alike.

Plans for "The Flint" are being offered at reasonable cost by Associated Architects, and you can order them by sending along the coupon below. Please check if you want drawings with basement (total cubage 22,000 cubic feet), or without basement (17,500 cubic feet). Either way, the house has 1,030 square feet of living area, plus 310 square feet occupied by the garage and covered porch.

As an "extra" you will receive with your order:

1.—A complete list of all building materials needed, down to the last nail.

Avoid Homemade Look in Home Workshop Goods

By MR. FIX
Written for Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Rivets and eyelets (or grommets) are readily available, and can be used with little trouble. They provide strength that other substitutes aren't likely to give.

Rivets are used for fastening eyelets for reinforcing holes and sometimes will double as rivets and other fasteners.

There's a big variety of rivets in a number of materials. When joining pieces of metal use the rivets of the same material, especially outdoors, or a corrosive action will result.

There are three basic types—solid, tubular and split. Solid rivets are the strongest, should be used when joining metal or making any seam that might be subject to strain.

Tubular (or hollow) rivets are less strong, easier to apply, should be used in leather, fabrics and thin materials in which the rivet can cut its own hole.

Split rivets are little like those paper fasteners you once used in school. But the split shank generally spreads itself as you pound it into the material. This makes them self-anchoring, can be used where they can't be fastened from in back.

If you do run them all the way through, then they must be anchored, but it's a simple job—just a matter of flattening the prongs. Use the split rivet for fastening new handles on garden tools. Garages use them for brake linings.

Your hardware dealer can provide you with a special rivet punch or set. But for a one-time job, a ball pen hammer will do the trick.

The rivet should be long enough so that the protruding end is about one and a half times the thickness of the rivet. If it's longer it may split, shorter and it won't hold.

Eyelets can be purchased where sewing supplies are sold or in any leather shop or hobby shop. They're used primarily to reinforce holes—as in the edge of a piece of canvas before you run a rope through.

Use eyelets to reinforce upholstery materials before running screws in. The eyelets will prevent the material from getting ragged around the screw head.

The eyelet cuts its own hole in thin fabrics. In heavier materials the hole must be cut first.

Flat vs. Gloss
Flat paints are recommended for walls and ceilings because they diffuse light evenly without glare. This is true for living rooms, bedrooms, and dining rooms, but for baths and kitchens where greater resistance to moisture is desired, use gloss or semi-gloss paints and enamels. The latter are recommended for woodwork, too, because they are more scrubbable.

Glancing Over TV Bill of Fare

By JAMES BACON
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — How come no more guns or burping trombones on Spike Jones' new TV show?

"With the kind of music on records today," answers the once zaniest of all bandleaders, "my pistols and hysterical trombones would make me sound legit."

Spike's new show is satirical, but subtly so. In the old days, the Jones' satire was about as subtle as a broken leg. Said Jones:

Good Replacement

"My own kids (Spike Jr., 12, and Leslie, 10) listen to all my old hits — and think it's great music. They can't understand why I'm not backing Paul Anka. "Even in my wackiest days, I don't think I could have come up with the racket those twanging guitars make on the hit records of today."

For years, Spike has come up with good summer replacement shows. This summer he is replacing Danny Thomas on CBS for 13 weeks.

"You know how some people send their children to camp in the summer? Helen (his singer wife, Helen Grayco) and I get out of the house in the summer —and let the kids stay home. It's the same therapy for parents only in reverse."

Old Jones Bite Evident

None of Jones' famous city slickers are in the new show—but the old Jones bite is there.

For instance, in the opening show, he took off on rating agencies by interviewing a 10-year-old girl. The girl, of course, confessed she never watched Lassie, Captain Kangaroo or Dennis the Menace.

Her favorites—Meet the Press, Playhouse 90 and Maurice Evans and Judith Evans in Macbeth. Then she went into the famed "Out, Out Spot!" speech from the Bard's classic.

Spike got the idea for that skit because he found his own kids and their playmates rate "Twilight Zone" as their favorite. "And you know the problems Rod Serling had in keeping it on the air. Madison Avenue thought it too adult," says Spike.

'SINGING SANDS' LURE OIL SEARCHERS

Trackless Desert of Arabia May Hide Great Oil Deposits

The great desert in southern Saudi Arabia, "Rub al Khali," or the "Empty Quarter," is just that. No life exists on the burning sands, piled by winds into giant ridges and mountainous dunes.

Desert tribes avoid this desolate region. They think death and evil spirits live there. But today in the search for oil, explorers are venturing into this thirsty land.

Only in winter do they go. In summer the thermometer soars to 130 degrees. Air-conditioned trailer houses, rolling over the sand on bloated rubber tires, are used for living and dining rooms, offices, and laboratories. Field parties go out during the day and report back with their findings to their trailer bases.

All supplies and water have to be trucked in from the seacoast. Fresh fruit and meat are often flown in.

Most of the work consists of drilling holes several hundred feet deep and setting off explosive charges at the bottom of each hole. The shock waves coming from these miniature earthquakes are recorded by sensitive instruments in the drilling rig. The instruments tell the geologists what the earth structure is like far below.

More exact information is then sought in promising spots by means of a larger driller rig that can bring up samples from thousands of feet down. While the oil pool has not yet been tapped, explorers are sure that this ocean of sand must cover something like the big producing field already discovered on the northern edge of this desert.

With the coming of summer, trailers, trucks, and other equipment are carefully covered and left at the base camps, because it would involve needless expense to move everything out and bring it back again.

Then the silence of an empty world is broken only when a burning wind is blowing, or when strange, moaning sounds, sometimes mounting to a roar, come out of the desert, as if the sands themselves were singing.

These "singing sands" are the Jinn or evil spirits of this "Empty Quarter," according to native legend. But modern scientists say the sounds are caused by the shifting of tons of sand along miles of dunes. And now these "singing sands" are a lure to men looking for oil.

Gold Coins

By Frances Gorman Risher

In Spring the pockets of the trees

Bulge with green, leafy money,

But when cool Autumn rolls around,

It really is quite funny;

The trees have changed their currency

To gold and heavy copper.

And they begin to feel that it is not exactly proper

To flaunt such wealth, so, bit by bit,

They toss away their treasure,

As if to say: "It weighs us down,

So giving is a pleasure!"

A camel, symbol of desert life for centuries, ambles past a modern symbol of Arabia—an oil derrick. Oilmen can only work during winter months—when it is not so hot. Their equipment is just left in the sand until they return months later. Map at right shows the location of the Rub al Khali, the "Empty Quarter" of Saudi Arabia, where exploration is under way.

When Steam Calliope Tooted You Could Hear Its Song Ten Miles Down the Mississippi

You didn't have to be a prize fighter to play the old river boat steam calliope (pronounced: kal-eye-o-pee). But you did have to have strong fingers and arms to open the valves against 70 to 100 pounds of steam pressure.

Persons who visit the Steamboat Museum at Winona, Minnesota, can see how the calliope operated. It has one of seven known instruments of its kind that are still playable.

Winona's calliope has 32 chromatic whistles. These tuned whistles are attached to a steam chamber. The player sits at a keyboard and presses keys that are connected to levers by wires. The levers release valves. A tremendous toot results.

A "parboiled" version of "Down By the Old Mill Stream" might take 10 minutes to play and use up 15 gallons of water. Playing a half-dozen tunes could use up 100 gallons of water.

The steam calliope is the loudest of all instruments. Its blasts from river showboats sent whole towns scurrying to the levee. They would wait there in anticipation for the curtain to go up on "East Lynne" or "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

Winona's calliope is one of many river boat exhibits on an old stern paddlewheel boat that was once the pride of the Mississippi. The stern-wheeler is "docked" on the dry land of a city park.

It was built in 1898 and was next to the last of its type on the upper Mississippi River.

A calliope concert often is given on the boat. But you do not have to be present to enjoy it. You can hear the music 10 miles away.

This steam calliope once played in a circus. (From an old print.)

SHORT STORY BY LATHAM BINGA---

Joey Was a Little Wise Guy Until That Day When . .

Joey Scott chewed his gum noisily, popping it at given cautious intervals and then peeking up from his history book to see if he had managed to distract his fourth grade teacher.

Miss Clay was busily correcting test papers, and so far, Joey could see no change on her face. But without bothering to look up, Miss Clay called politely: "Joey, please come to the desk."

Joey got up slowly and brushed back his unruly, sandy cowlick. Why didn't she ever get angry like the other teachers of Edison Grade School? Miss Clay didn't stand much taller than Joey, but he knew she wasn't afraid of him.

He stood at the desk waiting for her to look up. She counted up the score and marked "80" at the top of the paper. She put it aside then. For a moment, she just looked at Joey with those tender grey-green eyes, which always seemed to make him feel so foolish. If she'd only get angry, he could get angry right back!

"The gum, Joey," she said, holding her hand out.

Joey hesitated. Why, he'd paid his own money for this gum! She had no right to demand it.

"Joey, please," Miss Clay persisted, keeping her voice soft and even.

"O.K.," Joey snapped. He took the stick of gum from his mouth and pressed it into her palm hard. He grinned. That'll upset her!

But when he looked up again, she was merely examining her sticky palm as if she held some precious jewel. "Thank you, Joey," she whispered. "You may be seated now."

"Why don't teachers let children chew gum?" he asked.

Miss Clay was silent for a long moment.

But finally Miss Clay answered: "Because it's not polite to chew gum, unless you offer some to the entire class."

At lunch time, Joey went to the candy store across from the school. He fumbled in his pocket for his lunch money and counted out 30 cents.

The fat, jolly storekeeper waddled up to wait on him. "What will it be, Joey?"

"Six packages of gum," Joey said.

Joey watched Miss Clay's pretty young face, as she made her way to her desk without looking around. Boy, was she going to get a shock, when she did look around to find every boy and girl in her room chewing gum. Joey had received good co-operation from the rest of the class; and every jaw was busy chewing.

The afternoon wore on, but Miss Clay did not seem to notice, in spite of the fact many of the children were popping their gum, and stringing it out of their mouths. Joey popped and ground on his until his ears ached.

When the bell rang to end the school day, Miss Clay sat correcting papers. Joey remained in his seat, waiting to hear the words.

Such concentration, for even a teacher! He took a book out of his desk and let it drop on the floor.

Miss Clay looked up. "Why, Joey! What are you still doing here? School has been over for 20 minutes."

Joey stammered. "I just figured you'd make me stay after school for giving all the kids some gum."

Miss Clay smiled. "Well, it wasn't a very nice thing to do. Why do you dislike me so very much, Joey?"

Joey lowered his head. "I don't dislike you. I just don't see why you can't get angry like other teachers. You're always sugar-sweet and honey, no matter what anyone does."

"So that's it! Would you have felt much better, if I had asked you to remain after school?"

"No, but at least you'd be fighting back. You see, it's not very much fun fighting someone who won't fight you back."

"I'm here to teach—not fight with you," said the teacher.

Joey scratched his head. "I never thought of that. . . . I'm sorry for all the trouble I've tried to cause."

Miss Clay beamed. "That's the first mark of a gentleman, Joey—being able to apologize for his mistakes. You'd better get along home now. . . . And, Joey. . . ."

"Yes, m'am." "Thanks a lot for letting me know that you don't dislike me."

GREETING-IN-LAW'S VISITORS

Q: My husband's parents own a two family house. They live on the first floor and we live on the second. The other evening relatives of my husband came to visit his parents. We did not go down to see them. The next day my mother-in-law came up to our apartment and was very much put out because we did not go down to say "hello" to these relatives and she thinks we were very rude not to have done so. I would like your opinion on this matter.

A: If your mother-in-law had told you ahead of time that these relatives were coming and asked you to come in to greet them, or if they had come from a distance and you hadn't seen them for a long time, you should have gone down to see them. But, otherwise, you are not expected to go down to greet every relative who comes to visit your parents-in-law.

Jewelry From a Young Man

Q: A young man whom I have been dating for the past year gave me a very nice watch for my birthday. My mother says it would be improper for me to keep it and insists that I return it to him. I'm afraid if I do this it will hurt his feelings and perhaps be the end of our friendship. Would it be a breach of etiquette to keep the watch, and if so, how can I return it without hurting him?

A: A girl is not supposed to accept valuable jewelry from a man unless she is engaged to him. If you explain that you are broken-hearted not to be able to keep it but that your mother will not permit you to do so, he couldn't do other than hold you in respect for your willingness not to do something of which your mother disapproves.

Where to Leave Spoon

Q: When finishing soup or cereal or any food served in a dish with a plate under it, should the spoon be left in the dish or put on the side of the plate? I never know.

A: If the dish is wide and fairly shallow, the spoon may be left in it; otherwise it should be left on the plate underneath.

Grange Head to Speak In Orange August 2

One of America's oldest farm organizations, the Grange, speaks on the National Farm Bill. National Grange Master Herschel D. Newsom will be the guest speaker at Montgomery Grange Hall, Montgomery, Orange County, Aug. 2, at 8:30 p. m.

Anyone interested in attending this meeting is welcome to do so.

Home Extension Service News

Phyllis W. Barlow, county home demonstration agent of Ulster County Extension Service Association, reminds all to keep the following keys to defensive driving in mind during the observance of National Farm Safety Week, July 23-29:

Obey All Traffic Regulations—Only the immature and incompetent think they can safely ignore speed limits, "no passing" rules, stop signs, and other traffic control measures.

Be alert at all times—Dangerous situations develop fast. Be doubly watchful after dark. Remember to glance at the rear-view mirror frequently.

Allow a margin of safety—Good drivers never assume that other drivers or pedestrians will do the right thing—and they don't insist on their right-of-way at all costs. Follow the car ahead at a safe distance. This is obviously a matter of judgment, but there is a good rule: Allow at least one car length for every 10 miles per hour of speed—that is, at least three car lengths at 30 miles an hour, four at 40, and so on.

Make your intentions clear—Before stopping, turning, changing lanes, or other maneuvers that may affect nearby traffic, give proper signals and make sure the way is clear.

Stay in one lane as much as possible—Don't weave or hog the road. Cross centerline only when passing or turning left.

Prepare for turns and stops—Get into the proper lane well in advance and signal.

Keep an eye on parked cars—Watch for signs indicating that a vehicle may be about to pull out from the curb.

Place yourself by the traffic around you—Don't race. Don't lag. Don't ride the bumper of the vehicle ahead.

Don't back into trouble—When you back up, make certain the way is clear.

Reduce your speed at night—Don't overdrive your lights. Use your passing beam, even if the other fellow doesn't. Keep your windshield, headlights, and tail-lights clean.

Keep your self-control—Never lose your temper at other drivers or drive recklessly to "let off steam."

Always be courteous on the road—The Golden Rule is the most important adjunct to the traffic rules.

Treat for You

City dwellers are pretty much confined to black and dark colors for the summer months. But since you wear these all winter, too, it's only fair to treat yourself to a blue linen or a pink cotton as you go along.

Left-Handed Children

If your child is left-handed, he (or she) is by no means an exception. He is among the estimated five million children of school age who are "southpaws." Any parents who may be unduly concerned should know that Babe Ruth, Michaelangelo, ex-President Truman and Leonardo da Vinci are some of the outstanding successful "lefties."

According to Collier's Encyclopedia Reference Service, scientists say there is no single reason for handedness. Heredity, environment, learning, practice, training, chance factors and individual personality traits all help to determine hand preference. Left-handed people frequently show preference for the left eye, left ear and left foot, just as those who are right-handed favor the right eye, right ear and right foot. Otherwise, the left-handed boy or girl is in no way different from the right-handed child.

Hand preference is well-established by the time a child reaches school age, and most authorities agree that no attempt should be made to force the boy or girl "southpaw" to become right-handed. Psychologists believe that a left-handed child compelled to change to his right hand will usually be less successful in activities such as writing, games of skill and in using tools. So that he isn't made to feel different or inferior, a left-handed youngster should be told that there is no "right" or "wrong" hand to use in throwing a ball or holding a fork or pencil. Rather, he should be given greater encouragement to develop his own capabilities with his left hand. "Lefties" should be impressed with the fact that being left-handed is perfectly correct and normal.

Many child guidance experts point out the possible dangers of nervousness, speech difficulties and other complications if children are pressed to change from using the left hand. By their attitude, parents can help a child accept his left-handedness as perfectly normal even though occasionally it may be inconvenient.

Left-handed children should be given greater attention and training so that they will master skills in using their hands. They should be shown how to adopt a comfortable writing position, how to hold a pen and pencil with fingers well back from the point, how to slant the paper at an angle and other techniques to make writing easy. Left-handed youngsters need guidance even more than do right-handed children because most games and tools have been designed for a right-handed world.

Wagner Critical Of State Program On Medical Care

NEW YORK (AP)—Mayor Robert F. Wagner charged today that New York State legislation implementing the federal program for medical care to the aged is hampering proper use of the program. Wagner told Sen. Pat McNamara, D-Mich., in a letter that New York City is operating under the federal program "regardless of the state imposed obstacles," but with excessive administration costs.

McNamara is chairman of the Senate Committee on the Aging. The mayor said the city presently is spending $72 million a year on medical services for the aged.

He charged that "the state provisions, including the administrative requirements of the State Department of Social Welfare, reduced the benefits authorized by the federal government."

Who's Grissom?

St. Louis Check Brings Up Wide Array of Views

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A St. Louis radio station (KWK) selected telephone numbers at random Friday and asked this question of 30 persons who answered:

"Who is Virgil Grissom?"

Eleven correctly identified him as the astronaut; 13 said they didn't know; 3 said he was a disc jockey; 1 thought he was a radio announcer; 1 woman thought he formerly lived in her apartment "because I got some of his mail." And one sleepy voiced woman answered:

"With this hangover, I couldn't care less."

Bird nests are sometimes found in Hawaii made from threads of spun volcano glass which birds pluck from droplets of lava.

Four of Family Hurt Friday in Claverack Crash

Four members of a family were injured, one seriously, when their car and a cement truck operated by Raymond Snyder, 29, Saugerties, collided Friday on Route 23, west of the Taconic Parkway in Town of Claverack.

In Columbia County Memorial Hospital, Hudson, are Raymond Winant, 43, of Hillsdale; his wife, Dorothy, 42; their daughter, Mrs. Sandra Casavant, 18, of Hudson and her four-month-old daughter, Dorothy. Winant was reported in serious condition with a compound fracture of the left leg and lacerations. The others were reported as fair.

Troopers reported Snyder, driver of a cement truck, was arrested and charged with reckless driving. Arraigned before Justice of the Peace Crawford Carl of Claverack, he was released in $500 bail for appearance next Tuesday.

The truck, traveling west on Route 23, pulled out to pass another vehicle and struck the side of the Winant car, state troopers said.

Gen. Barnard E. Bee of South Carolina to point to him with his sword and cry: "There stands Jackson like a stone wall. Rally behind the Virginians."

Jackson, portrayed by George J. Bisacca, a wealthy Yankee of Lenox, Mass., and a Civil War buff from a way back, couldn't be reached by field telephone when the time came for Brig.

Adultery in '13 Wins Divorce for London Man, 77

LONDON (AP)—Bill Duffell, 77, was granted a divorce Friday on charges his wife committed adultery almost half a century ago.

Waiting outside the court was Miss Nellie Stone, 60 whom he plans to wed.

"I was married back in 1904," said Duffell, "but we parted in 1908. Then I brought up my two daughters and after that I had to look after my parents."

Duffell charged his wife had a son by another man in 1913. She did not contest his suit.

Duffell explained he didn't bring the divorce action earlier because he could not afford a court case and was unaware he could get state legal aid until two years ago.

Watzka Hurls, Bats Winners Over Saugerties Club

John Watzka pitched and batted the Glasco-East Kingston Little League all-stars to a 6-4 win over Saugerties last night in a sectional tournament tilt. The winning club will play a game at Windham next Wednesday.

With his teammates on the short end of a 2-0 count, Watzka poled a home run with a runner on base in the third inning to knot the score. The Glasco-East Kingston boys then added two runs more as Pete Watzka and John Nagy both singled and advanced on passed balls.

Saugerties tied the score in the last of the third on a walk, fielder's choice and a hit by Jack Whitaker. Watzka doubled in the fourth, stole third and scored on a passed ball. That was the winning run though another was added in the sixth on a walk to John Nagy, a fielder's choice and a solid knock by Fred Serravallo.

Watzka allowed only three hits while walking four and striking out 13. Brian Curley was the loser for Saugerties.

Blanchard's HR Biggest Thrill; Sets AL Record

BOSTON (AP)—"I was so far out I couldn't hear a thing."

John Blanchard, one of the most prideful of the proud Yankees, spoke excitedly Friday night after his ninth-inning, pinch-hit grand slam home run pulled out an 11-8 victory over Boston and returned New York to first place in the American League.

"It was the biggest thrill of my life," said the reserve catcher whose two-out blow off Red Sox relief ace Mike Fournies capped a rally from an 8-6 deficit.

"All the guys were waiting for me with congratulations when I came back to the dugout but I was momentarily deaf," Blanchard added.

The blow was a record, too, the sixth pinch-hit grand slammer of the season in the AL—topping the previous mark of five in 1953.

"This homer was bigger than most to me," Blanchard said. "The bases were full and we had just lost a terrible doubleheader to Washington.

"Fournies threw me three curves in a row, then a fast one. All I was looking for was a ball to hit and I got it."

Ferraro Hits Homer

Nadler Juniors Win, 2-1, Over Delmar Club

Mike Ferraro rapped a home run in the sixth inning and Bob Nadler's Legion Juniors remained unbeaten with a 2-1 triumph over Blanchard Post of Delmar last night at Dietz Stadium.

The winning blast by Ferraro was only the second hit for the locals. Eric Broberg had a single earlier in the tilt.

Ferraro was the winner. He allowed only three safeties while walking three and sending 14 batters down on strikes. Delmar scored a run in the fifth after the local nine had tallied once in the fourth.

The Nadler team has a 7-0 record and will take part in the legion tournament next weekend at Dietz Stadium.

Cobb Was a Disliked Player, Preferred His Own Company

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ty Cobb probably was the most disliked baseball player the game has known. He was a "loner" who preferred his own company on and off the field. His quick temper led him into fights with players, fans and even his teammates.

Let it be said he never backed away from a battle. He took many a licking but he came back for more. Usually he won the rematch.

When Cobb began to emerge as a star in 1907, Hughie Jennings had become manager of the Tigers. Ty thought he was being overlooked by the new boss until Jennings called him aside.

"My boy, you think I've been overlooking you," said Jennings. "Boy, I want to tell you this: There isn't a thing about baseball that I can teach you. The only thing for you to do is go ahead and use your own judgement. You can teach yourself better. Do what you think is best and I'll back you."

No Orders Given

Jennings never gave Cobb orders. Ty never was handicapped by signals. He gave his own. He became an individualist.

Cardinals Rap Dodgers, 10-1; Yankees Back in Top Position

Simmons Gives Only Five Hits; Braves Score Win

By ED WILKS

Associated Press Sports Writer

The St. Louis Cardinals knocked off Los Angeles 10-1 Friday night and dropped the second place Dodgers two games behind Cincinnati in the National League race. The Reds were rained out.

Milwaukee's Braves, who like the Cards now have won six of their last seven games, beat Pittsburgh 5-3. Philadelphia defeated the Chicago Cubs 4-3 on Tony Gonzalez' 10th inning home run.

Only Singles

The Dodgers managed nothing but singles against the Cards' Curt Simmons (5-7). The southpaw veteran gave up seven hits and three walks while striking out five. He had a shut out until the ninth, when the Dodgers scored on a bases-loaded walk.

Right-hander Don Drysdale (7-6) was the loser. Joe Cunningham led the Cards' 12-hit attack with two singles and a three-run homer.

Hank Aaron did it for the Braves with two home runs, off loser Bob Friend (9-12). Aaron belted a two-run shot in the first inning, then tagged his 22nd home run, a solo blast, for a 4-1 lead in the sixth. In between, he singled and scored in the fourth inning. The Bucs out-hit the Braves 12-6, getting 10 hits off right-hander Lew Burdette (11-6), who needed relief in the eighth.

The Phillies battled from behind after Billy Williams' two-run homer had given the Cubs a 3-1 lead in the sixth inning. Clay Dalrymple's single made it 3-all in the eighth, and Gonzalez then broke it up with his home run off losing reliever Barney Schultz (3-2). Jack Baldschun (4-1) was the winner in relief.

New York Police Military Status Will Be Checked

NEW YORK (AP)—All 24,000 of this city's police officers and men have been ordered to report by Monday morning whether they hold any military rank.

The order, issued Friday is the first of its kind since the Korean crisis. Possibly a fifth of the department would be subject to call-up in a national emergency prompted by the Berlin situation. Said a policeman: "If an emergency is declared—as seems pending at this moment—the police commissioner would like to be able to make assignments which would best cover the population of the city."

Recently when the northern lights illuminated the sky over Washington, D.C., several rookie firemen telephoned their stations to ask where the big fire was.

Kennedy Is Back On Cape, Free Of Appointments

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP)—President Kennedy expects to have in his hands by Sunday the first draft of the vitally important address he will deliver Tuesday on shoring up the national defense.

For the moment, though, Kennedy cast aside official care and settled into the easy, comfortable ways of a Cape Cod weekend. Aides said the President's schedule for today was completely blank so far as official appointments were concerned.

But the week ahead will be a heavy one. It includes a radio-TV address Tuesday night outlining the dimensions of the Soviet menace to Berlin and other world trouble spots and the military measures Kennedy plans to take as a consequence. On Wednesday, he will follow through with a message to Congress spelling out how to translate these measures into legislative action.

There have been widespread reports that Kennedy expects to declare at least a limited national emergency, mobilize some of the reserves and National Guard, and ask for a tax increase to pay the bill. The White House was verifying nothing.

Dime Quarrel Fatal

NEW YORK (AP)—An 18-year-old boy who tried to settle a noisy quarrel in a Brooklyn playground was punched and kicked to death by three teen-agers Friday night. The argument was over a dime. The victim, Judge Sanders, was playing handball with his brother in a school yard when the argument broke out nearby. Sanders tried to calm three

Konsek, Keating Meet In State Golf Tourney

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (AP)—The top match in the quarter-finals of the State Golf Association's amateur championship today was a battle of youth, with three-time winner John Konsek facing Charles Keating Jr. of Corning.

Konsek, a medical student from Buffalo is 21. Keating, son of a golf pro, is 20.

The quarter-finalists range in age from 19 to 49. The youngest is Joe Purcell, a Buffalo grocery clerk; the oldest, Joe Biasone, Syracuse bowling alley proprietor. Biasone was matched against Dr. Roberto Impagliaia, Auburn physician, while Purcell faced Don Allen, a 23-year-old player from Rochester.

Allen's older brother Ray Jr., 29, squared off against John Ward, Syracuse realtor and president of the State Golf Association. The four survivors go into the semi-finals in the afternoon. The 36-hole final will be played tomorrow over the 6,341-yard course at the Onondaga Golf and Country Club.

A 3-1 Triumph
Normally smooth-swinging Konsek had some bad moments in the fourth round Friday but triumphed over John Hausen, 32-year-old Albany merchant, 3 and 1.

Keating defeated Steve Jacobson, 20, of Utica, 4 and 3.

Konsek had a one-up lead over Hausen after the first nine holes, despite a sluggish 39 strokes, 3 over par. Konsek made a poor approach shot on the 11th, but chipped to within four feet of the cup and won the hole. Hausen required three putts, giving Konsek a two-up margin.

Hausen won the next hole. Konsek grabbed the 13th and again led by two. They halved the next three.

Konsek netted a birdie four to win the match on the long 17th hole after hitting the green in two. Biasone scored a 2 and 1 victory over Jerry Gell of Syracuse. Three down at the end of five holes, Biasone went the rest of the way seven under par in a display that included five birdies and an eagle.

Purcell had to go 19 holes to eliminate George Noma of Utica. Impagliaia and Mid O'Hare of Syracuse also went 19 holes before the physician took the round with a 12-foot putt for a birdie 3.

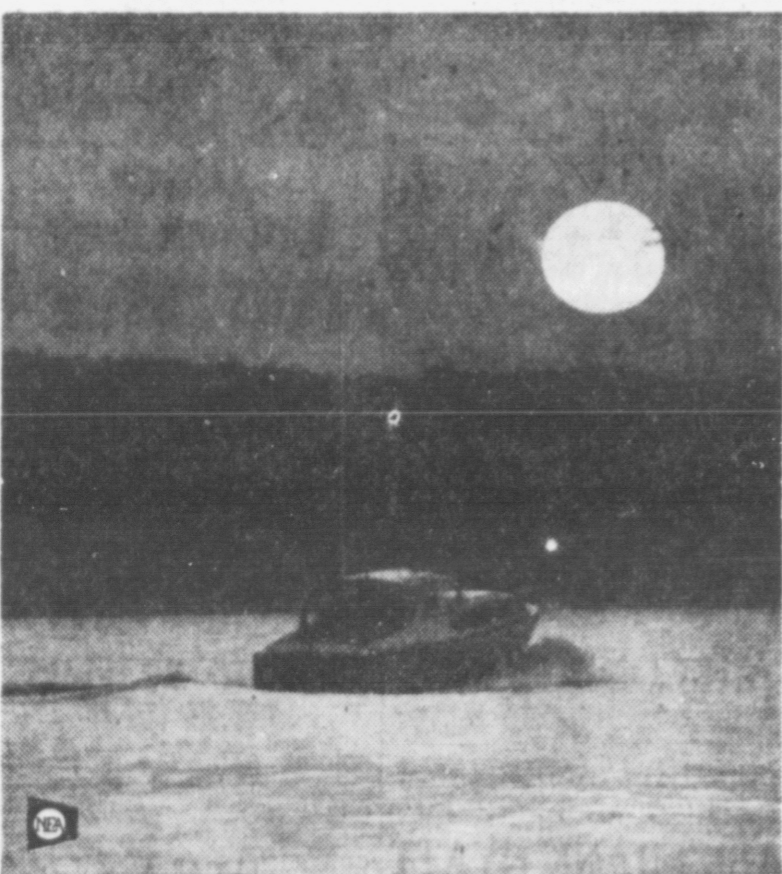

Ward, a finalist three times and an alternate in this tournament, eliminated John McCleary of Johnstown, 4 and 3.

America Afloat
Daylight boating hours are long this time of year, but night time on the water offers extra pleasure.

The water becomes more calm. Harbors that were busy are quiet. The boatman heading out leaves heat, turmoil, insects behind along the shore. Yet at sunset most pleasure craft are hurrying for port, and manage to miss some of the most placid boating hours. Starting a weekend cruise by leaving after work on Friday gives the trip a head start.

Even many fish prefer to be caught during the evening. Any skipper feels some uncertainty when he first heads out on dark water. When we were small boys learning night boating we admitted this was called being afraid. Then, as now, a little practice makes fear go away while leaving a healthy respect for the water.

We used a long oar as a sounding pole to feel for the bottom when we got close to shore, and a lead line to locate the channel running out to a fishing hole in the middle of the lake. Today, new gadgets make night navigation easier.

MOON MAGIC—Nights on the water give the boating family pleasant navigation practice as well as a head start on a cruise. Calm seas and deserted waterways add appeal.

spoils night vision. The searchlight will spot marker buoys, driftwood and the shore line, but must never be aimed into the wheelhouse or bridge of another passing craft.

The warmest summer night can become cool, offshore when the dew comes down. You'll be glad for sweaters and jacket. Even a rowboat should carry small demountable navigation lights powered with flashlight batteries. Clamped on after dark, they make chances much better for the small boat to be spotted and avoided.

More elaborate equipment—electronic depth sounders and radio direction finders—once were only for the big boats. Now no dinghy is too small to use one of the portable self-powered models. Larger craft now sensibly sport radar and loran, when the skipper can afford them, and the handy dock lights that mount on each side of the bow.

If the night gets long and you are tired or not too sure just where you are, drop the anchor if you are well away from traffic and busy channels. Mount a bright anchor light, and wait for morning.

SAFE!

The Daily Newspaper
Is the Safer, Surer
Advertising Investment

Two questions influence the choice of an advertising medium. First, what does it cost to reach a person with a sales message? Second, how many of those you reach will buy? A typical advertiser can reach a person through newspapers at least as economically as through other media. And the newspaper delivers an audience that likes to read advertising, prefers newspapers with advertising, and shops from advertising. Such an audience guarantees more sales action per message delivered, and makes newspapers the safer, surer ad medium. Why not send the daily newspaper to bat for you?

Just Can't Win

GLENS FALLS, N.Y. (AP)—A by-pass has been built around this city to assure the smooth flow of traffic.

One result: An unusually large number of accidents where the by-pass and a secondary road intersect.

The apparent solution: Move stop signs at the intersection from the by-pass to the secondary road.

One result: An accident while the signs were being moved.

A Long Flight and a Short Swim

Grissom Made It But His Capsule Sank

KEEPING AN APPOINTMENT WITH SPACE—Astronaut Virgil (Gus) Grissom leaves an air-conditioned van and walks toward waiting Redstone rocket and "Liberty Bell 7" space capsule. Grissom took off aboard the rocket on a 16-minute flight that hit a peak speed of 5,280 miles an hour and a top altitude of 118 miles. The Liberty Bell came down in the Atlantic 303 miles away but Grissom had to swim the last 65 to 70 feet to get away from the sinking capsule. He survived his flight and dunking in fine condition, but the spacecraft sank in 16,800 feet of water. (NEA Telephoto)

Unaware of Impending Trouble

Gus Grissom Was More Concerned About Tear In Parachute, Control

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Virgil I. (Gus) Grissom was functioning as a dedicated test pilot and was not aware of impending trouble as he prepared to leave his floating spacecraft Friday.

He was more concerned during the flight with a rip in his parachute and trouble with his manual control system.

Transcript Facts

These facts were revealed in a transcript of Grissom's radio voice contact with fellow astronauts in the blockhouse and control center, with the USS Randolph and the recovery helicopter.

Included is a dramatic exchange between Grissom and the man who preceded him into space, Alan B. Shepard Jr. Shepard was the communicator in the blockhouse.

During the critical moments before the escape hatch unexpectedly blew out, flooding the capsule and forcing Grissom to swim for his life, the astronaut was asking the helicopter to wait a few minutes before picking him up. He wanted the time to take readings off all his instruments.

"Roger, give me about five the helicopter reported it was overhead."

When he was ready to leave, Grissom radioed:

"Tell me when you are ready to go. I am going to have to take my helmet off and blow the hatch off."

"Taking my helmet off, power down and blowing the hatch. The transcript ended with this statement from the helicopter:

"And when you blow the hatch the helicopter will already be down that way."

Didn't Press Plunger

National Space Agency officials explained that when Grissom reported he was blowing the hatch off, he meant he was pulling the pin which armed the 70 explosive bolts on the door. The hatch could not be blown off until he pushed a plunger.

But for an unexplained reason the bolts exploded without his pressing the plunger.

Grissom looked at his parachute through his "picture window" during re-entry and radioed the Randolph:

"You might make note there is a small hole in my chute. It is about 6 inches by 6 inches. Actually it is a triangle rip."

Examination Slated

Announcement was made today that August 1 is the last day for filing application forms by persons who contemplate taking the Treasury Department's special enrollment examination on Sept. 27 and 28.

The examination is to qualify persons, other than certified public accountants and attorneys, who wish to represent clients in tax and other matters before the department.

James A. O'Hara, local district director, noted that additional information and application forms may be obtained from the district director of Internal Revenue, 161 Washington Avenue, Albany, 1.

Dolgeville Fire Destroys Plant, Firm's Offices

DOLGEVILLE, N.Y. (AP) — A blaze that firemen had under control until a water line burst destroyed the packaging plant and offices of a charcoal firm.

Firemen from two nearby Herkimer County communities responded when a booster line burst and helped Dolgeville firemen lay 1,500 feet of hose to battle the fire which was raging out of control at the Keil Charcoal Co. plant Friday night.

The fire, believed caused by spontaneous combustion in charcoal storage bins, destroyed the 1½-story, 100 by 40 feet, T-shaped structure. The rear portion, where the fire broke out, was of frame and metal construction, and the front section, containing office, of concrete block. No damage estimate was available.

The plant, owned by Samuel Keil of Rochester, was closed when the fire was discovered.

U. S. Must Stand Firm on Berlin, Proxmire's View

CHAUTAUQUA, N. Y. (AP)—Sen. William Proxmire (D-Wisc) says the United States must stand firm in Berlin using military strength to command respect.

"We must stand firm," he said, but added that military forces should not "be used to kill unless we are forced to do so."

In a speech at the Chautauqua Institution, Proxmire said the United States can win peace with freedom if it has the courage to face a possible nuclear war.

Virgil Grissom, had made a successful suborbital flight, Mrs. Grissom is all smiles as she walks from her Newport News, Va., home with her sons, Scott, 11, and Mark, 7. READY FOR SPACE—While waiting to enter the space capsule, Capt. Virgil Grissom sits in his confout chair after donning his special insulated air-conditioned, aluminumized space suit and helmet. ## 'Little People' Study Problems At Convention

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Little People of America gathered here today to help each other solve their problems — big ones like finding a job and small ones like where to buy shoes.

"We can't expect the world to adjust to us—we've got to adjust to the world," said Art Noble, Indianapolis, Ind., national vice president of the Little People of America, Inc.

About 150 midgets and dwarfs came to Washington for the weekend convention.

"This is to broaden their outlook," Noble said in an interview. "They get so many disappointments—they run into a brick wall, and they give up."

And, Noble said, "a lot of them don't realize there are other little folks that have the same problems."

This is one idea of the convention, to get the little people together and talking—they meet new acquaintances and they find out about where to get their clothes and shoes, by being sociable, these little things come out of it."

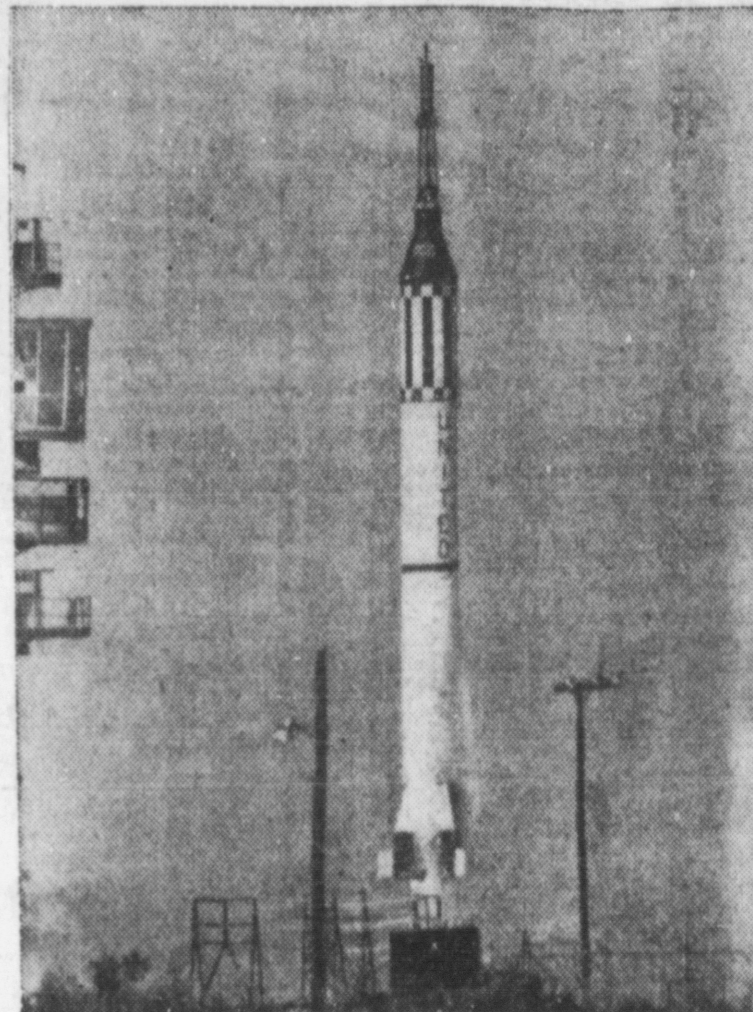

In the convention sessions they talk about the big problems—education and employment.

"Employment—how to get a job and how to keep it—is the main problem," Noble said. He deals in investment securities. With him was Bill Albaugh, Camden, N.J., who travels for a soft drink firm (Squirt) and is its living trademark.

Loth Noble and Albaugh wanted to get the story across that the Little People of America exists to help all the little folks help each other. Its president is Dan Turner of Asheville, N.C., but its national offices are at Indianapolis.

The Little People of America, Inc., has a constitution and by-laws. A board passes on membership. It has no specifications, but generally all members are below 4 feet 10 inches in height.
